MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES*I. Overview

In 2005, US Airways (then a bankruptcy debtor) and America West Airlines merged to form a new airline also called US Airways, one of the defendants in this action. Addington v. US Airline Pilots Ass'n, 606 F.3d 1174, 1176 (9th Cir. 2010). This is the third round of litigation addressing whether the US Airlines Pilots Association (“USAPA”), the union representing US Airways pilots, is bound by its duty of fair representation (“DFR”) to use a pilot seniority list (“Nicolau Award list”) that was created by binding arbitration between the pilots from the old US Airways (“East Pilots”) and those from American West (“West Pilots”).

As soon as the Nicolau Award was issued in May 2007, the East Pilots repudiated their agreement to treat it as final and binding. Id. at 1177-78. Within a few months, they formed a single-airline union, USAPA, and used their majority power to have it oust the Airline Pilots Association (“ALPA”), the multi-airline union that was representing these pilots and requiring implementation of the Nicolau Award. Id. at 1178. The East Pilots’ majority status in post-merger US Airways allows them to control USAPA because USAPA only has US Airways pilots as members. See id. at 1178-79. Under such East Pilot control, USAPA is firmly and unequivocally repudiating its duty to honor the Nicolau Award. Id.

In September 2008, the West Pilots filed a DFR action. Addington v. US Airline Pilots Ass'n, 588 F. Supp. 2d 1051, 1055 (D. Ariz. 2008). The District Court ruled that the West Pilots were “entitled to a union that will not abrogate the Nicolau Award without a legitimate purpose.” Addington v. US Airline Pilots Ass'n, No. 2:08-CV-1633-NVW, 2009 WL 2169164, at *28 (D. Ariz. Jul. 17, 2009). After a 10-day trial, a jury found

1 that USAPA breached the DFR because it was acting for no legitimate 2 union purpose. Id. at *7. The Court then enjoined USAPA from entering 3 into a collective bargaining agreement (“CBA”) that did not implement the 4 Nicolau Award.

5 USAPA appealed and the Ninth Circuit vacated the judgment on the 6 basis of lack of ripeness. Addington, 606 F.3d at 1184. But in so doing, it 7 cautioned USAPA that unless it “bargain[ed] in good faith pursuant to its 8 DFR, with the interests of all members—both East and West—in mind,” 9 there would be “an unquestionably ripe DFR suit, once a contract is 10 ratified.” Id., at 1180 n.1.

11 On July 27, 2010, US Airways filed a declaratory action to obtain 12 guidance as to whether it would be liable if it entered into a CBA with 13 USAPA that did not implement the Nicolau Award. US Airways, Inc. v.
14 Addington, No. 10-CV-01570-ROS (D. Ariz. Jul. 26, 2010) (Doc. 1). The 15 District Court held that USAPA would breach its DFR if it entered into 16 such a CBA without “a legitimate union purpose.” Amend. Judgment, 1 17 (Dec. 4, 2012) (Doc. 206). But, out of deference to the Ninth Circuit, the 18 Court held, in theory, that it was possible that something might arise in 19 future CBA negotiations that could provide a legitimate purpose.

20 In February 2013, four parties—(1) American Airlines, a Chapter 11
21 debtor; (2) the Allied Pilots Association (“APA”), the union representing 22 the American pilots; (3) US Airways; and (4) USAPA—entered into a 23 contract called the “Memorandum of Understanding Regarding 24 Contingent Collective Bargaining Agreement” (“MOU”). (Doc. 5-2). The 25 MOU fixes all material terms for the CBA that will apply to US Airways 26 pilots if American Airlines and US Airways merge (to form a new airline, 27 “New American”). The MOU does not implement the Nicolau award. It 28 does not (by any means) provide a legitimate reason for USAPA to

1 repudiate its duty to implement the Award. Yet, USAPA has repeatedly 2 and unquestionably (but wrongly) stated that it can and will treat the 3 Nicolau Award as a nullity.

4 Plaintiffs bring this action on behalf of all West Pilots to establish 5 that USAPA and US Airways (and their successors) must order the 6 seniority of the US Airways pilots according to the Nicolau Award 7 seniority list.

8 II. Legal Argument

9 The District Court has twice certified the proposed class to defend 10 the Nicolau Award. It did so in the 2008 DFR litigation against USAPA
11 and in the 2010 declaratory judgment action brought by US Airways. It 12 should readily do so again here.

13 A. Class Definition

14 The proposed “West Pilot Class” is comprised of approximately 1,600 15 individuals. (Doc. 1 ¶ 87). It is defined as: “All pilots who are on the 16 America West seniority list currently incorporated into the West Pilot’s 17 collective bargaining agreement.” (Id. ¶ 86). All class members: (1) have a 18 right to implementation of the Nicolau Award (id. ¶¶ 39-48); (2) are owed 19 a DFR by USAPA to implement the Nicolau Award (id. ¶ 62); and (3) 20 suffer from breach of that duty (id. ¶¶ 97-99).

21 B. Class-Wide Remedies / Issues

22 Plaintiffs seek the following declaratory relief on behalf of the West 23 Pilot Class:

- 24 (1) USAPA must have a legitimate union purpose to enter 25 into a CBA that does not order the seniority of the US
26 Airways pilots according to the Nicolau Award;
- 27 (2) The MOU is a CBA that does not order the seniority of 28 the US Airways pilots;

- 1 (3) USAPA breached its DFR because it entered into the
- 2 MOU without having a legitimate union purpose;
- 3 (4) USAPA has unequivocally repudiated its duty to order
- 4 the seniority of the US Airways pilots according to the
- 5 Nicolau Award in the process of creating a integrated
- 6 pilot seniority list for New American;
- 7 (5) USAPA breached its DFR because it unequivocally
- 8 repudiated that duty without having a legitimate union
- 9 purpose; and
- 10 (6) US Airways is jointly liable under hybrid claim doctrine
- 11 for entering into the MOU.

11 C. Legal Standards

12 1. There is a strong presumption in favor of class

13 certification.

14 On a motion for class certification, courts accept the moving party's

15 factual allegations as true. Blackie v. Barack, 524 F.2d 891, 901 n.17

16 (9th Cir. 1975); Shelter Realty Corp. v. Allied Maint. Corp., 574 F.2d 656, 17 661 n.15 (2d Cir. 1978). Courts also apply a presumption "in favor and 18 not against the maintenance of the class action." Esplin v. Hirschi, 402

19 F.2d 94, 99 (10th Cir. 1968). In so doing, if the court has doubts about 20 the merits of class action treatment, those doubts "should be resolved in 21 favor of class certification." Brown v. Cameron-Brown Co., 92 F.R.D. 32, 22 49 (E.D. Va. 1981).

23 2. The West Pilot Class satisfies Rules 23(a) and #### 24 23(b)(1)(A).

25 Pursuant to Rule 23(a), a party seeking class certification must

26 satisfy four conditions: (1) class size makes joinder of all members

27 impracticable; (2) substantial questions of law or fact are common to the 28 class; (3) the representative plaintiffs' claims are typical of class-wide

1 claims; and (4) the representative plaintiffs and their counsel will fairly 2 and adequately protect the interests of the class. In re Mego Financial 3 Corp. Securities Litig., 213 F.3d 454, 462 (9th Cir. 2000). The proposed 4 class must also satisfy the requirements of one subdivision of Rule 23(b).
5 Id.

6 D. The West Pilot Class Satisfies Rule 23(a).

7 The proposed West Pilot Class, class representatives, and class
8 counsel satisfy all four elements of Rule 23(a).

9 1. Numerosity

10 Rule 23(a)(1) requires that a class be “so numerous that joinder of 11 all members is impracticable.” East Texas Motor Freight Sys. v.
12 Rodriguez, 431 U.S. 395, 405 (1977). One court found numerosity 13 satisfied by as few as 39 class members. Patrick v. Marshall, 460 F.
14 Supp. 23, 26 (N.D. Cal. 1978). The West Pilot Class readily satisfies
15 numerosity because it has about 1600 members. (Doc. 1 ¶ 87.)

16 2. Commonality

17 The Supreme Court refined its standards for commonality in Wal-
18 Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 2011 WL 2437013 (June 20, 2011). The Court 19 explained:

20 What matters to class certification . . . is not the raising of 21 common ‘questions’—even in droves—but, rather the capacity of 22 a classwide proceeding to generate common answers apt to 23 drive the resolution of the litigation. Dissimilarities within the proposed class are what have the potential to impede the generation of common answers.

24 Id. at *7 (quoting Richard A. Nagareda, Class Certification in the Age of 25 Aggregate Proof, 84 N. Y. U. L. Rev. 97, 132 (2009)).

26 The class in Dukes lacked commonality because Wal-Mart provided 27 “local managers[ ] discretion over pay and promotions.” Id. at *4; see also 28 id. at *8 (“The whole point of [Wal-Mart] permitting discretionary

1 decisionmaking is to avoid evaluating employees under a common
2 standard.”). Wal-Mart, in other words, had no “uniform employment 3 practice” that could be evaluated class-wide in a single determination:

4 The only corporate policy that the plaintiffs’ evidence 5 convincingly establishes is Wal-Mart’s “policy” of allowing 6 discretion by local supervisors over employment matters. On its 7 face, of course, that is just the opposite of a uniform 8 employment practice that would provide the commonality needed for a class action; it is a policy against having uniform employment practices.

9 Id. at *9.

10 The proof for members of the proposed Dukes class who worked at 11 one store, therefore, would not be the same proof as that for class 12 members who worked at different stores. See Gen. Telephone Co. of S.W.
13 v. Falcon, 457 U.S. 147, 159 (1982) (reversing class certification because 14 the class representative offered different proof for his personal claim than 15 what was offered for the class). At a minimum, there had to be 16 subclasses for each store.

17 Dukes does not negate certification here. The West Pilots are 18 challenging a single course of action that results from a centralized 19 decision to disregard the Nicolau award. This decision affects all class 20 members. Whether that decision and the actions that flow from it is a 21 DFR breach is susceptible to a single answer that would be applicable to 22 all West Pilot Class members. The answer (and the proof to get that 23 answer) would be the same for any class member. The West Pilot Class, 24 therefore, readily satisfies commonality.

25 3. Typicality

26 “The question of typicality in Rule 23(a)(3) is closely related to the 27 preceding question of commonality.” Rosario v. Livaditis, 963 F.2d 1013, 28 1018 (7th Cir. 1992). The difference is that typicality considers whether,

1 in regard to material issues, “the interest of the named representative
2 aligns with the interests of the class.” Hannon v. Dataproducts Corp., 976
3 F.2d 497, 508 (9th Cir. 1992). Typicality does not apply to all aspects of a 4 plaintiff’s “interest.” Hence, it is not necessary that all class members 5 share the named plaintiffs’ enthusiasm for the litigation. See Abrams v.
6 Communications Workers of Am., 59 F.3d 1373, 1378 (D.C. Cir. 1995)
7 (typicality is satisfied regardless that it is not established that all class 8 members favor the litigation). It is important, however, that the 9 representatives personally have the claim that is common to the class 10 members.

11 Like other West Pilots, Plaintiffs were on the America West seniority 12 list in 2005 and 2008. (Doc. 34 at ¶¶ 3-8). Like other West Pilots, they 13 are aggrieved by USAPA’s repudiation of its duty to implement the 14 Nicolau Award list and by USAPA’s entrance into a CBA (the MOU) that 15 does not implement the Nicolau Award. Like other West Pilots, they have 16 an interest in ensuring that the pilot seniority integration in the New 17 American merger orders the US Airways pilots according to the Nicolau 18 Award. Like all US Airways pilots (East and West), they have an interest 19 in seeing that USAPA adheres to its DFR. Plaintiffs, therefore, are typical 20 of the class they seek to represent.

21 4. Adequacy

22 The question of adequacy considers the qualifications of class
23 counsel and of the proposed class representatives. The analysis depends 24 on three factors: (a) “the qualifications of counsel for the representatives;” 25 (b) “an absence of antagonism, a sharing of interests between 26 representatives and absentees;” and (c) and “the unlikelihood that the 27 suit is collusive.” Crawford v. Honig, 37 F.3d 485, 487 (9th Cir. 1994).
28 “[T]he named representatives must appear able to prosecute the action

1 vigorously through qualified counsel” and “the representatives must not 2 have antagonistic or conflicting interests with the unnamed members of 3 the class.” Lerwill v. Inflight Motion Pictures, Inc., 582 F.2d 507, 512 (9th
4 Cir. 1978); see also Wetzel v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 508 F.2d 239, 247 (3d 5 Cir. 1975) (“Adequate representation depends on two factors: (a) the 6 plaintiff’s attorney must be qualified, experienced, and generally able to 7 conduct the proposed litigation, and (b) the plaintiff must not have 8 interests antagonistic to those of the class.”).

9 “Although questions concerning the adequacy of class counsel were 10 traditionally analyzed under the aegis of the adequate representation 11 requirement of Rule 23(a)(4) . . . those questions have, since 2003, been 12 governed by Rule 23(g).” Sheinberg v. Sorensen, 606 F.3d 130, 132 (3d 13 Cir. 2010). Rule 23(g) provides, in relevant part, as follows:

14 In appointing class counsel, the court ... must consider: (i) the 15 work counsel has done in identifying or investigating potential 16 claims in the action, (ii) counsel’s experience in handling class 17 actions, other complex litigation, and claims of the type asserted 18 in the action, (iii) counsel’s knowledge of the applicable law, and 19 (iv) the resources counsel will commit to representing the class.

20 Rule 23(g)(1)(C). Rule 23(g) also provides that a court “may consider any 21 other matter pertinent to counsel’s ability to fairly and adequately 22 represent the interests of the class. . .” Rule 23(g)(1)(B).

23 The litigation history here provides the Court ample evidence that all 24 elements of adequacy are well satisfied. The Court has the evidence of 25 the performance of Plaintiffs as class representatives in the two prior 26 class action litigations against USAPA. It likewise has evidence of the 27 performance of this class counsel in both of those litigations. That 28 evidence of adequacy of both class representatives and counsel speaks for itself in the reported decisions cited above. Additional evidence is addressed below.

1                   a. Counsel readily satisfies adequacy.

2           Class counsel is experienced in prosecuting large class actions. See 3 Marty Harper, Decl. (Mar. 22, 2013). Class counsel is also experienced in 4 prosecuting complex Railway Labor Act matters. See, e.g., Addington, 5 606 F.3d 1174; Airline Pilots Ass’n, Int’l v. O’Neill, 499 U.S. 65 (1991);
6 Rachford v. Air Line Pilots Ass’n., Int’l, C-03-3618-PJH, 2006 WL 927742
7 (N.D. Cal. 2006). The Court should readily find that counsel readily 8 satisfies the adequacy standards of Rule 23(g), and on that basis satisfies 9 adequacy.

10                   b. Plaintiffs readily satisfy adequacy.

11           In regard to the adequacy of representative plaintiffs, “[t]he court is 12 bound to take the substantive allegations of the complaint as true.”
13 Blackie, 524 F.2d at 901, n.17. The allegations here establish that 14 Plaintiffs “have moral and financial support from many West Pilots” and 15 that “[t]hey each have a good understanding of the issues underlying this 16 litigation and have demonstrated a willingness to invest the necessary 17 time and efforts to fulfill their duties as representative parties.” (Doc. 1 at 18 ¶ 90.) This demonstrates that Plaintiffs share the interests of the class 19 and have the confidence and support of the class. The Court, therefore, 20 should find that Plaintiffs also satisfy adequacy.

21                   E. The West Pilot Class Satisfies Rule 23(b)(1)(A).

22           Rule 23(b)(1)(A) applies where “individual adjudication of the 23 controversy would prejudice . . . the party opposing the class.” United 24 Broth. of Carpenters & Joiners of America, Loc. 899 v. Phoenix Assoc., Inc., 25 152 F.R.D. 518, 521 (S.D.W. Va. 1994). The potential for such prejudice 26 is most acute where that party “is obliged by law to treat the members of 27 the class alike (a utility acting toward customers; a government imposing 28 a tax), or where the party must treat all alike as a matter of practical

1 necessity (a riparian owner using water as against downriver owners).”
2 Amchem Products Inc. v. Windsor, 521 U.S. 591, 614 (1997).

3 USAPA and US Airways are parties “opposing the class” (but not 4 necessarily opposing class certification) for whom “inconsistent or 5 varying adjudications . . . would establish incompatible standards of 6 conduct.” Rule 23(b)(1)(A). This is so because the goal of an airline 7 merger is to eventually operate using a single CBA and a single “system 8 for promotions and furloughs.” Bernard v. Air Line Pilots Ass’n, Int’l, 873 9 F.2d 213, 218 (9th Cir. 1989). This means, as a practical necessity, that 10 USAPA and US Airways (and their successors) must have a single 11 seniority list for the US Airways pilots. Because there will be one list it 12 will necessarily be the same list for all pilots.

13 In short, because there can only be one scheme of seniority 14 integration, there can only be one outcome on this DFR claim. That 15 requires class action treatment pursuant to Rule 23(b)(1)(A).

16 III. Conclusion

17 Plaintiffs respectfully ask the Court to certify the proposed West Pilot 18 Class pursuant to Rule 23(b)(1)(A).

19 Dated this 25th day of March, 2013.
