1 MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

2 By order dated July 19, 2013, this Court granted US Airways’ motion to dismiss.
3 Doc. 122. US Airways now seeks leave of Court for “limited intervention”. Defendant
4 US Airline Pilots Association (“USAPA”) submits the application should be denied.
5 While the application is based to a significant degree on the hubristic notion that the 6 Ninth Circuit’s wayward decision in Addington I resulted from US Airways’ lack of 7 participation therein (Doc. 128, at 6), it is apparent from US Airways’ papers that it has 8 no “legally protectable interest” in either the DFR claim or the claim by the plaintiffs that 9 they should be permitted separate representation under the MOU’s seniority integration
10 proceedings between USAPA and the American Airlines pilots’ union. There is also no 11 need for it to be granted separate status as intervenors in this action as they propose to 12 advance positions that they have already fully briefed, and that basically mirror those 13 being advocated by plaintiffs. Moreover, having been dismissed from the only claim of 14 the complaint (and amended complaint) in which it was implicated, there is no basis for it 15 to intervene in the remaining claims of the amended complaint, which are purely intra-16 union disputes as to which US Airways has repeatedly affirmed that it is “neutral” (a 17 stance that it reiterates here, see Doc. 128 at 4). For these and other reasons, the motion 18 for limited intervention should be denied.
19

20 POINT I

21 INTERVENTION IS UNWARRANTED IN THAT THE 22 POSITIONS US AIRWAYS ADVANCES ARE CONSISTENT WITH 23 PLAINTIFFS’ POSITIONS AND ALREADY BEFORE THE COURT

24 US Airways argues it has a “significant protectable interest” in this proceeding, 25 namely that “plaintiffs’ claims against USAPA are resolved promptly and on the merits”.
26 Doc. 128, at 5-6. In this regard, US Airways refers the Court to the schedule for 27 initiation and completion of seniority integration contained in the MOU (Doc. 122, at 4), 28 which it posits as its “strong and continuing interest” and a significant basis for its

1 application. Id. at 6.

2           However, “when an applicant for intervention and an existing party have the same
3 ultimate objective, a presumption of adequacy of representation arises. If the applicant's 4 interest is identical to that of one of the present parties, a compelling showing should be 5 required to demonstrate inadequate representation.” Prete v. Bradbury, 438 F.3d 949, 6 956 (9th Cir. 2006) (citing Arakaki v. Cayetano, 324 F.3d 1078, 1086 (9th Cir. 2003))
7 (emphasis added).

8           In this case, the interests that US Airways identifies and that it seeks to advance by 9 intervention here basically echo the positions of plaintiffs. The record before the Court 10 leaves no doubt that plaintiffs are fully capable of representing – and have represented -- 11 the interest of seeking prompt resolution of their claims on the merits and to that end, 12 plaintiffs sought, inter alia, a preliminary injunction consolidated with trial on the merits 13 specifically on the grounds that it was necessary to obtain prompt resolution of their 14 claims. See e.g. Doc. 124, at 2-3. To be sure, in that document, plaintiffs referred to the 15 MOU and American’s plan of reorganization, just as US Airways does here.<sup>1</sup> Moreover, 16 the principal “protectable interest” that US Airways identifies -- prompt resolution of the 17 dispute so that it does not affect the MOU timeframe for resolution of seniority 18 integration process -- has been ruled upon by the Court when it ordered that “[i]n hopes 19 of bringing a swift end to the parties’ disputes, the Court will advance the trial on the 20 merits and consolidate it with a preliminary injunction hearing on September 24, 2013.” 21
22

23           <sup>1</sup> Therein, plaintiffs argued: “There is a timely need to resolve the McCaskill-24 Bond dispute. The Bankruptcy Court will hold a hearing on August 15, 2013, to consider 25 approval of AMR Corporation’s plan of reorganization. (Doc. 121). The process of pilot 26 seniority integration will begin soon after the Bankruptcy Court grants such approval.
27 Ideally so as to not delay or otherwise interfere with that process, a court should resolve 28 the McCaskill-Bond dispute within the next few months.” Plaintiffs’ Motion for Leave to File Amended Complaint, Case No. 2:13-cv-00471-ROS, Doc. 124, July 25, 2013, at 2-3.

1 Doc. 122, July 19, 2013 Order, at 1. Accordingly, there is no longer any need for 2 advocacy on that score.<sup>2</sup>

3 Three observations are in order with respect to US Airways’ argument it should be 4 granted intervenor status because it “may be substantially affected if this action does not 5 promptly generate a disposition on the merits of plaintiffs’ claims . . .” Doc. 128, at 6.
6 First, and without belaboring the point made above, it is unclear how US Airways’ 7 repetition of the points made by plaintiffs advances its interest in a prompt resolution of 8 the merits of plaintiffs’ claims. Second, US Airways entered into the MOU with open 9 eyes and full knowledge of the long-standing pendency of the seniority integration 10 dispute and the litigation it spawned. To the extent that US Airways is advancing a 11 concern that could have or should have been contained in or provided for in the MOU, it 12 had the opportunity to do so when it negotiated the MOU with USAPA, American 13 Airlines, and the APA. To the extent US Airways now seeks to enforce or modify the 14 terms of the MOU, this action is not the time or place to do so. Third, while US Airways
15 raises concerns about the schedule under the MOU, this point has already been addressed 16 by the trial schedule the Court has ordered.

18 In sum, as the positions that US Airways seek to advance are already being 19 advanced by plaintiffs herein and have already been addressed by the Court, there is no 20 practical basis in fact for the intervention.

21 POINT II

22 US AIRWAYS HAS NO “PROTECTABLE INTEREST”
23 IN THE MERITS OF THE INTRA-UNION DISPUTE
24 THAT REMAINS IN THE AMENDED COMPLAINT

25 US Airways successfully moved for dismissal with respect to Claim II of the

26 <sup>2</sup> US Airways appears to acknowledge this point, even as it asserts it has a strong 27 and ongoing interest. See US Airways’ Intervention Pleading, Doc. 128-1, ¶9, p.6. It is 28 respectfully submitted that regardless of the strength of its interest, to the extent the Court has ruled on this issue, there is no basis for it to be granted intervenor status.

1 complaint (and the amended complaint), the only claim in which it was implicated. The 2 remaining claims of the amended complaint are disputes between plaintiffs and USAPA – 3 alleged breach of the duty of fair representation and whether a faction of the union is 4 entitled to separate representation in the McCaskill-Bond process. By operation of law
5 and under the MOU, US Airways must remain neutral with respect to this intra-union 6 dispute.

7 Under ¶ 5 of the MOU, US Airways has the obligation to “continue to recognize 8 and treat with USAPA as the representative of the pilots employed by US Airways...” 9 Doc. 77-8, ¶5, at 2. Being legally and contractually committed to recognize USAPA as 10 the exclusive representative of US Airways pilots defeats any claim by US Airways that 11 it somehow has a “legally protectable interest” advocating for “a prompt determination 12 that the West Pilots have the right under the federal McCaskill-Bond statute to full and 13 separate representation in the upcoming seniority-integration proceedings between 14 the pilots employed by US Airways and American Airlines, Inc. . . .” Doc. 128, at 2 15 (emphasis added).
16

17 The remaining claims of the amended complaint likewise reflect purely internal 18 union matters between plaintiffs and USAPA and, under the RLA, US Airways is 19 prohibited from interfering with USAPA’s status as the exclusive bargaining 20 representative. Virginian Ry. Co. v. System Federation No. 40, 300 U.S. 515, 548, 57 21 S.Ct. 592, 599-600 (1937) (holding that a carrier is prohibited from dealing with any 22 representative other than the certified bargaining representative with respect to “rates of 23 pay, rules, or working conditions of the craft or class.”)
24

25 Similarly, under the RLA, it is impermissible for US Airways to lend its support 26 for a minority faction of USAPA to have a separate seat at the table in the McCaskill-
27 Bond process. Such advocacy undermines USAPA’s status as the exclusive bargaining 28 representative and the carrier’s obligation to treat with the exclusive bargaining agent and

1 not a fact of that kind. See Hendricks v. Airline Pilots Assn' Int'l, 696 F.2d 673, 677 (9th 2 Cir. 1983) (“Under the collective bargaining system, selection of a union as the 3 bargaining representative substantially reduces the ability of individual employees to deal
4 directly with their employer. Hence, federal labor policy ‘extinguishes the individual 5 employee’s power to order his own relations with his employer and creates a power 6 vested in the chosen representative to act in the interests of all employees.’” (quoting 7 NLRB v. Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co., 388 U.S. 175, 180, 87 S.Ct. 2001, 2006 (1967)).
8 Moreover, US Airways’ improper insistence in a voice in this intra-union dispute raises 9 severe doubts as to their supposed “neutrality.”

10
11 US Airways’ intervention will have the effect, if not the purpose, of advocating on 12 behalf of plaintiffs. At the least, US Airways proposes to intervene to advance positions 13 that are, for all intents and purposes, the same as those advanced by plaintiffs on a record 14 where it is clearly unnecessary for it to do so in that plaintiffs are capable of making their 15 own arguments. Moreover, in seeking intervention, US Airways belies its profession of 16 neutrality and impermissibly treads upon the province of USAPA as the exclusive 17 bargaining representative of its pilots. US Airways’ position of neutrality, which it 18 repeatedly affirms, is best served by denying intervention.

19 POINT III

20 US AIRWAYS FAILS TO INTERPOSE A 21 PROPER INTERVENTION PLEADING

22 A party seeking intervenor status as of right or permission must submit a 23 proposed “pleading that sets out the claim or defense for which intervention is sought.”
24 Fed. R. Civ. P. Rule 24(c). Pleadings are defined in Rule 7(a) as one of the following: a 25 complaint or an answer, an answer to a counterclaim, an answer to a cross-claim, a third-26 party complaint, or an answer to a third-party complaint. Fed.R.Civ.P. 7(a).

27 US Airways’ intervention pleading neither sets forth a claim for relief that tracks 28

1 the amended complaint nor joins issue with the allegations of the amended complaint. It 2 is not a pleading as defined in Rule 7(a). Rather, US Airways interposes what can only 3 be described as a brief or memorandum of law that contains its arguments and case 4 authorities in support of the legal positions that it wants the Court to adopt. See generally
5 Doc. 128-1. Plaintiffs have made all the relevant arguments; intervention is not 6 appropriate just to allow the proposed intervenor to pile on with respect to arguments
7 already made; and US Airways has failed to propose a pleading setting out a cognizable
8 claim or defense for which intervention is sought. See Arakaki v. Cayetano, 324 F.3d
9 1078, 1087 (9th Cir. 2003) (holding that proposed intervenors had not met their burden 10 because the present parties had demonstrated that they were capable and willing to make 11 all of their arguments).

12
13 USAPA is aware of authority that holds there are circumstances under which 14 intervention may be granted even in the absence of a pleading. See e.g., Beckman Indus., 15 Inc. v. Int'l Ins. Co., 966 F.2d 470, 474 (9th Cir. 1992). However, it is respectfully 16 submitted that this exception to the express provision of Rule 24(c) should be followed 17 only where the proposed intervenor expressly adopts the pleading of one of the parties.
18 US Airways has not done that here and the exception is not applicable. See State of 19 California Dep't of Soc. Servs. v. Thompson, 321 F.3d 835, 847 (9th Cir. 2003).

20 CONCLUSION

21 For the foregoing reasons, USAPA respectfully requests that the Court deny US 22 Airways' Motion for Limited Intervention.

23 Respectfully submitted this 6th day of August, 2013.
