REPLY TO US AIRWAYS IN

20 US Airways' Response, Doc. 326, is a collateral attack on the Ninth Circuit's
21 opinion, and a stunning reversal of the positions it took 76 days before its Response here, 22 when it argued against the appointment and participation of a new East Pilots Merger
23 Committee in the SLI proceedings. Additionally, US Airways has asked this Court again 24 to make a business decision for it, a request that this Court properly declined several 25 years ago. This Court should disregard US Airways' arguments, and decline again to 26 make US Airways' business decision for it.
27

1           What a Difference 76 Days Make.

2           On June 30, 2015, US Airways (1) opposed the appointment and participation of a 3 New East Merger Committee in the SLI Proceedings; (2) argued that if one were 4 appointed it would be bound by the Ninth Circuit Mandate<sup>1</sup>; and (3) stated that it 5 disfavored any attempt by the East Pilots to fashion a work-around that would allow it to 6 ignore the Ninth Circuit's mandate. (See Ex. A: Excerpt of June 30, 2015 Transcript of 7 Pre-Hearing Meeting before the SLI Board, at pages 37 – 40.) On June 30, therefore, US
8 Airways stated that it was willing to live with whatever might result from precluding East 9 Pilots from any further participation the SLI proceedings. Today, US Airways frets about 10 the potential delay in implementing the new SLI list when it issues, worrying that if the 11 new East Merger Committee is enjoined from ignoring the Ninth Circuit's mandate it will 12 throw yet another tantrum and walk out of the SLI.<sup>2</sup>

14           In arguing that the West Pilots would cause delay by properly seeking enforcement
15 of the Ninth Circuit's mandate through an appropriately-worded injunction, US Airways 16 fails to acknowledge that delay caused by future litigation brought by the East Pilots is 17 already inevitable. The East Pilots have already evinced their intent to later appeal the 19           <sup>1</sup> US Airways misleads the Court regarding what the SLI Board held about the 20 effect of a court decision on the Board. [Doc. 323, page 2, lines 12-15.] The Board 21 actually declined to predict what injunction might issue and, instead, indicated that it 22 understood the new East Committee would likely be bound by whatever a court of 23 competent jurisdiction ultimately decides: “The precise question whether, or to what 24 extent, any injunction ultimately issued by the District Court on remand will limit 25 advocacy in this proceeding by a newly formed East Merger Committee is a legal 26 question for the court itself to resolve. The response to that question will depend upon the 27 precise wording of the injunction, when issued... [We] decline to answer Question No. 2 28 to the extent that it seeks to have us opine on the applicability of a judicial restriction on advocacy by any newly appointed East Merger Committee.” (See Ex. C, excerpts of July 5 SLI Board decision, at pages 17-19.)

would have happily proceeded without them, without seeking a court's permission first.

1 Preliminary Arbitration Board (“PAB”) determination that gave the West Pilots a seat at 2 the table in the SLI proceedings. (See Ex. B, Excerpt of USAPA’s April 3, 2015, 3 Supplemental Brief filed with the Ninth Circuit, page 5. “[T]he [PAB] order is still open 4 to challenge and the [McCaskill-Bond] process has yet to run its course.”) Delay will be 5 once again caused by the East Pilots who – starting in 2008 when they threw a tantrum 6 and formed USAPA to abrogate the final and binding arbitration that resulted in the 7 Nicolau Award – ultimately prevented the integration of East and West after America 8 West and US Airways merged. If the East Pilots walk again, this will be consistent with 9 their MO of refusing to participate in or accept of the results of final and binding rulings 10 when those rulings don’t go their way.

11 The More Things Change, the More They Stay the Same.

13 In reality, if delay in implementing the SLI list occurs it will be fault of US Airways
14 if it fails, once again, to implement an integrated seniority list that results from SLI 15 proceedings based upon agreements (to which it was a party) that facilitated a merger
16 among the airlines and their pilots (the 2005 Transition Agreement, and the 2013 MOU) 17 in the first place. The MOU states “[t]he integrated seniority list resulting from the 18 McCaskill-Bond process shall be final and binding on APA and USAPA (and/or the 19 certified bargaining representative of the combined pilot group), the company(ies) and 20 its(their) successors (if any), and all of the pilots of American/New American Airlines and 21 US Airways.” (See MOU at para. 10(c).) It does not say that the integrated seniority list 22 will not be binding until all legal challenges have run their course.

24 US Airways, rather than make that business decision on its own because of a 25 potential threat by the East Pilots, has asked this Court once again to make a decision for 26 it and force it to comply with its own contract. As Yogi Berra would say, it’s déjà vu all 27 over again. This Court previously declined to make US Airways’ business decision for it 28 when this Court declined to issue a declaratory judgment about what course of action US

1 Airways should make in light of competing threats by the pilot groups in US Airways,
2 Inc. v. Addington, et al., 2:10-CV-01570-ROS (“Addington II”). As this Court noted 3 years ago, that is a business decision for the carrier to make, rather an issue to bring to 4 this Court. US Airways goes to great lengths to remind the Court that neither it, nor APA, 5 were party to USAPA’s breach and that they should therefore be unaffected by its 6 wrongdoing. In so doing, US Airways ignores that USAPA did not insert the improper 7 paragraph 10(h) into the MOU without the agreement of US Airways, APA and 8 American’s agreement to the offending provision, on which USAPA capitalized in its 9 breach of the duty of fair representation to the West Pilots. Having agreed to the improper 10 language that codified USAPA’s breach, US Airways (and APA) would nevertheless like 11 to remain unaffected by the harm that resulted therefrom, leaving the West Pilots to 12 continue to fight for their rightful seniority positions on multiple fronts. Surely, this is 13 not equitable.

15 If and when the SLI Board issues its seniority list, it will be up to US Airways to 16 decide whether to implement the SLI list while litigation is threatened by the East Pilots, 17 or to fall back and wait it out. The West Pilots will have nothing to do with the decision 18 US Airways ultimately makes in that regard.

19 The Ninth Circuit’s Mandate Must Be Implemented.

21 The Ninth Circuit held that USAPA’s abandonment of the Nicolau Award violated 22 its duty of fair representation. It directed this Court to enter an injunction that would 23 require USAPA to advocate for the Nicolau Award if it were to participate in the 24 McCaskill-Bond proceedings. Yet, in its Response here, US Airways argues that “[e]ach 25 pilot merger committee should be free to present any position it wishes in the SLI 26 Arbitration.” Doc. 326 at 4:3 to 326:4. That is directly contrary to the mandate which 27 plainly constrains what can be advocated.
28

1 US Airways might not like it, but the law of the case here is that USAPA cannot 2 “present any position it wishes in the SLI Arbitration.” If USAPA is to participate in 3 those proceedings, it must advocate for the Nicolau Award. There should be no question
4 then that the East Pilots cannot participate in the SLI Arbitration (the McCaskill-bond 5 proceedings) unless they advocate for the Nicolau Award.

7 Contrary to US Airways’ argument, Plaintiffs have not proposed an injunction that 8 limits the “authority” of the Arbitration Board. Doc. 326 at 3:24 to 326:26. Plaintiffs’
9 proposed injunction only constrains the merger committee representing the East Pilots, 10 which is precisely what was envisioned by the Ninth Circuit. The Court, therefore, should 11 join APA pursuant to Rule 25(c) for the reasons stated in Plaintiffs’ Reply to APA, which 12 is being filed concurrently. It should enter an injunction as proposed, using the language 13 from Rule 65(d)(2).

16 The only open question is whether the East pilots, by reforming their merger 17 committee as an Allied Pilots Association (“APA”) committee, can evade the intent of 18 the Ninth Circuit’s opinion. Rule 65(d)(2), the common law upon which it is based, and 19 common sense tell us that they cannot.<sup>3</sup> Whether APA is joined under Rule 25(c) or not, 20 when it created an East Merger Committee and engaged the experts and attorneys used by 21 the USAPA merger committee, it acted in active concert with USAPA and, thus, is bound 22 by the injunction. Plaintiffs merely ask that the injunction be stated in language that 23 makes this point crystal clear.

24 In the end, it is up to this Court to decide the scope of the injunction. Regular 25 practice is to include the Rule 65(d)(2) language. The West Pilots respectfully suggest 26 that there is no good reason to deviate from the norm. Indeed, there are particularly good 27

<sup>3</sup> All references to “Rules” are to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

1 reasons to use the precise language of the rule given the East Pilots' long history of 2 feeling free, and finding ways, to ignore court and arbitration rulings. It is time to shut
3 the door on any opportunity for the East Pilots to disrespect and disregard yet another 4 court order.

5 Respectfully submitted this 16th day of September, 2015.
